FIGHTING FOR OUR FARMS AND ECONOMY

The drought cost California's economy $2.7 billion in 2015. 21,000 jobs were lost.

Over 500,000 acres lie fallow in the Central Valley.

Jeff Denham knows that water is the lifeblood of our economy. Every farm and community in the Valley depends on a reliable water supply to survive.

In Congress, Jeff is working across party lines to find solutions that will increase water storage and ensure a safe, clean and plentiful water supply for our future.

“To continue to have jobs in the Central Valley and a vibrant food supply for the rest of the country, everyone needs to put political differences aside and act now to fix our water systems.”
